

My Son

Lyrics by Keith Daniel Washo

You had me at “Daddy” with that cute little grin
Those first teeth showing, yeah, I fell right in
Your big brown eyes looking up at me with glee
Lord, I’m thankful you’re my baby

From chasing you barefoot down our home hallway
To the way you curl up close at the end of the day

You’re my son, my beautiful boy
You’re my heart, my bud, my everlasting joy
So when the world gets loud and you need someone to hold
I’ll be standing here with hugs and love to warm you from the cold
You’re my son… You’re my son

My Son

From your little hand in mine
Oh how you grab my thumb so tight
The way you light up and smile, when I come home each night
The way you show you care
Wondering where daddy is now
From your hugs and wrestles
Wanting to play forever somehow

One day you'll be bigger, I know running off on your own
Chasing down your dreams, finding who you'll become

You're my son, you're my beautiful boy
You're my heart, my bud, my everlasting joy
When the world gets loud and you need someone to hold
I'll be standing here with hugs and love to warm you from the cold
You're my son…, You're my son… You're my son.

Love you buddy, I'm glad you're my son
